

Q20: Support for efforts to keep PTA (i.e. Kauri Dieback Disease) out of our forests

---

Agree

---

But don't keep the people out. Its why we are here and very important emotionally and spiritually to be in the bush.

---

The main local vector of kauri dieback - pigs, is not being tackled, also I think that provided if sexually reproduced trees rather than from cutting, resistance will be found.

---

As above. What does 'support' mean? We've got a champion in our community already, it's up to each of us to follow hygiene protocols.

---

Again, this is a national issue and should be discussed at that level.

---

As above, this is a National problem and requires a consistent, coordinated response.

---

trygene stations on all bush accesses

---

We really need to protect the trees!

---

Just one issue. Where does the village begin and end?

---

Dogs on beaches is not controlled and we end up with dog faeces on the beach where our grandchildren are playing. This to me is a very high priority

---

Yes yes yes!

---

To me this means not only educating people and preventing access where necessary but also eradicating wild pigs - as I believe they have more potential to spread the disease on the peninsula. It seems a bit like gun control in America - pig hunting is a person's right in NZ and if we eliminate them what are they going to hunt?

---

Don't wait till its to late

---

too difficult to resolve for anyone should not be RA's agenda

---

kauri 2000, such great work...shame to lose it again!

---

Same again. Lose this environment and we are another Matarangi not sure about more poison, as we have to spray our shoes. walkers keep on the walking trails.....

---

---

Need to prevent private operators from embarking on projects that will introduce this threat o uninfected areas e.g. Waitaia Forestry logging and extraction through Coromandel Forest park.

---

I believe a far more holistic understanding of our forests needs to be factored in to how we approach managing this disease.

---

If it means closing the forest to humans than NO

We are part of the forest

And yes let's make sure if possible

Chris Twemlow is the persons

Q20: Support for efforts to keep PTA (i.e. Kauri Dieback Disease) out of our forests

We all have qualities that can be utilised and we all have healing to do
Within ourselves and with other who cross our paths

Thanks I hope you have a good chuckle reading this. And get the essence of what in expressing Keep it slow and steady
The more infistructure we do the more people will come and soon we will be paving (concreting more likely ) paradise and putting up a parking lot
And charging a dollar and a half for humans to see a kauri tree too
Lots of love Krra team and thank you for your efforts to keep this place awesome and clean
In closing the less human input the better nature does. Harmony is key
